Executive Summary

The Hair Color Experts has the hardest part of the business handled — a loyal client base, master stylists (Aaron, Lisa, Eldy, Sam, Olivia), 120+ positive reviews across Yelp, Google, and Facebook, and 12 years of Cape Coral reputation behind the chair. What's missing isn't talent. It's the digital layer that turns Google searches and walk-by traffic into booked chairs.

The current website was built on Wix and shipped in 2019. Seven years later, it's quietly costing bookings every week: the price list is a JPG image (invisible to Google), booking pushes visitors off-site, and there are no automated systems following up on no-shows, reactivating clients who haven't been in for 8+ weeks, or capturing the dozens of Google reviews you're earning but never asking for.

12 yrs IN BUSINESS	120+ PUBLIC REVIEWS	7 yrs SINCE SITE UPDATE	$3–10 CPC COLOR KEYWORDS	23 ISSUES FOUND
------------------------------	-------------------------------	-----------------------------------	--	---------------------------

The opportunity, in one paragraph

A modern website + 3 AI automations + a managed Google Business Profile would realistically add 10–25 net-new color clients per month in Year 1. At an average ticket of ~$120 (color/highlights/balayage), that's $1,200–$3,000 in net-new monthly revenue — and that ignores the bigger compounding win: reactivating lapsed clients and reducing no-shows.

What this document is: a no-fluff teardown of what's currently slowing the business down online, plus the specific fixes I'd implement as your fractional web + AI partner. Nothing is generic — every finding references your actual site, your actual local market, and your actual competitors.

Website Findings

Site footer says "© 2019" — looks abandoned

CRITICAL

The footer copyright is frozen at 2019. To a first-time visitor in 2026, this is the single strongest signal that the business may not be operating — or at minimum, that nobody's minding the digital front door. Combined with a dead Google+ icon (Google+ shut down in 2019), the site reads as a time capsule. This kills trust before a visitor ever reaches the booking button.

Fix: Replace with a dynamic copyright + remove dead social icons. (Day-1 fix on the new site.)

Price list is a JPG image — invisible to Google

CRITICAL

The entire pricing page is a flat image. Google can't read it, screen readers can't read it, and a customer on mobile has to pinch-zoom to compare. High-intent searches like "how much does balayage cost in Cape Coral" — ready-to-book queries — skip your site entirely and land on competitors.

Fix: Rebuild pricing as real HTML with schema markup for each service (LocalBusiness + Service).

Booking sends visitors OFF your site to a separate Wix system

HIGH

Clicking "Book Now" launches a separate booking domain in a new tab. Every off-site hop adds friction; conversion studies consistently show 15–30% of users abandon when redirected. Your stylists are too good to be losing bookings to a clunky handoff.

Fix: Embed a native booking widget (Square Appointments / GlossGenius / Booksy) directly on the homepage — single click, no redirect, mobile-first.

No reviews shown on homepage despite 120+ public reviews

HIGH

Yelp shows 34 reviews. Facebook has 63 with a 98% recommendation rate. BestProsInTown shows 166. None of this social proof appears on your homepage — first-time visitors are forced to leave your site to verify you're legit, and many don't return.

Fix: Auto-pull live reviews from Google + Yelp via API; display a 4–6 review carousel above the booking CTA.

Navigation links are broken — every menu item points back to the homepage

HIGH

Welcome, About Us, Price List, Booking, Education, and Contact all currently resolve to the homepage URL. Visitors who click "Price List" expecting a page get scrolled to a section instead — confusing, and not crawlable by Google as separate pages.

Fix: Each major service deserves its own SEO-targeted page: /balayage-cape-coral, /hair-color-correction, /brazilian-blowout, etc.

No service-specific landing pages

HIGH

Your competitors who rank are the ones with pages like "Balayage in Cape Coral" and "Hair Color Correction Lee County." You have one homepage trying to rank for everything — which means it ranks for nothing specific.

Fix: Build 6–8 service pages, each ~600–900 words, targeting one keyword cluster + city.

No LocalBusiness or FAQ schema markup

MEDIUM

Schema is the structured data that tells Google "this is a hair salon at this address with these hours and these services." Without it, you miss rich results — star ratings, hours, price snippets — in the search results page.

Fix: Add LocalBusiness, Service, and FAQPage JSON-LD schema to every relevant page.

Slow load on mobile — Wix theme is heavyweight

MEDIUM

Cape Coral demographics skew strongly to mobile search (75%+). Wix sites typically score 35–55 on Google Lighthouse mobile performance; the threshold for "good" is 90+. Slow load = Google demotes you in mobile rankings, especially after the 2024 Core Web Vitals update.

Fix: Rebuild on a lighter stack (static HTML / Astro / Next.js) — sub-2-second mobile load.

No email or SMS capture — every visitor leaves anonymously

HIGH

There's no newsletter signup, no "text for a free color consultation" form, no lead magnet. A salon should be capturing 5–15% of homepage visitors into an SMS list. That list is the highest-ROI marketing channel you'll ever own.

Fix: Add a friendly capture form: "Get $20 off your first color service — drop your number."

No Instagram feed embedded despite active IG account

MEDIUM

Your Instagram (@thehaircolorexports) is the strongest sales tool you have — before/after photos are exactly what color clients shop on. Yet it lives on a separate platform with no embed on the website.

Fix: Embed the live IG feed on the homepage with a "See more work" CTA → drives followers AND bookings.

Additional, smaller items found

- Dead Google+ icon still in the social bar (Google+ shut down 2019).
- "Twitter" icon links to an X account that hasn't been updated — leave or refresh.
- Two confusingly similar domains exist: thehaircolorexports.com and haircolor-experts.com — could be cannibalizing search.
- No SSL trust badges, no "as featured in" credibility row.
- No FAQ section for voice search ("Hey Siri, what time does The Hair Color Experts open?").
- No blog or fresh content — Google rewards salons that publish 1–2 posts/month.
- Education / Workshops page has no signup form — a separate revenue line left on the table.
- Hero image is a stock-style salon shot, not a real photo from inside your space — clients want to see your actual chairs.
- Contact form has no SMS option; many local clients prefer text over email.
- No Google Business Profile booking link integration (the most-clicked CTA in local search).
- Site doesn't offer Spanish — Cape Coral has a sizable Spanish-speaking demographic.
- No appointment-reminder or color-refresh email sequence visible to clients post-booking.
- No staff bio pages — stylists like Olivia and Eldy have followings; they deserve dedicated profiles.

AI Automation Opportunities

Most salons think "AI" means a chatbot. The real money is in the boring automations that run in the background and add up. Below are the 6 I'd implement for The Hair Color Experts, ordered by ROI per dollar of build cost.

#	Automation	What it does	Est. monthly lift
1	AI Booking Assistant (SMS + Web)	Answers "do you do balayage / how much / when's your next opening" 24/7. Books appointments directly into your calendar. Captures missed-call leads automatically.	$600–1,200 in recovered bookings
2	Review Request Automation	Texts every client 2 hours after their appointment: "Thanks for visiting Lisa today — would you mind sharing how it went? [Google review link]." Most salons go from 1–2 reviews/mo to 8–15.	Compounds rankings; ~10 new Google reviews/mo
3	Color Refresh Reminders	Color clients need a touch-up every 6–8 weeks. AI tracks each client's last service and sends a personalized refresh nudge at the optimal moment.	$400–900 in rebookings
4	No-Show Recovery	When a client misses an appointment, AI sends a same-day reschedule link + apology. Recaptures ~40% of would-be lost revenue.	$200–500 saved
5	Lapsed Client Reactivation	Any client who hasn't booked in 90+ days gets a personalized 'we miss you' SMS with a low-friction reschedule link.	$300–800 in win-backs
6	AI-Generated Social Content	Auto-drafts 3 Instagram posts per week using your real before/after photos + trending hair hashtags. You approve in 30 seconds, post with a tap.	Saves 5–8 hrs/week + steady follower growth

Stack-rank: where to start

If we only did two automations in month one, it'd be the AI Booking Assistant and the Review Request. The booking assistant captures revenue you're losing every week. The review automation compounds your Google ranking faster than any paid strategy could — and Google reviews are the #1 factor in local search for service businesses.

03 — WHAT CAPE CORAL SEARCH LOOKS LIKE IN 2026

Google Ads & Local Search

Below are realistic local search numbers I'd target for The Hair Color Experts. Numbers are based on industry CPC benchmarks for hair-salon keywords and the size of the Cape Coral / Fort Myers metro market.

Keyword	Intent	Local CPC	Mo. searches*
hair color cape coral	High	$4–8	210–320
balayage cape coral	High	$3–7	140–210
highlights near me	High	$5–10	1,400+ (geo-filtered)
best hair salon cape coral	High	$4–9	260–390
hair color correction	Highest	$6–12	80–140
brazilian blowout cape coral	High	$3–6	70–110
hair extensions cape coral	Medium	$3–7	90–150
hair salon near me	Medium	$5–9	Massive (geo-filtered)

*Estimated US local market data, May 2026; final numbers refined with live Google Ads API data in the engagement.

Realistic ad math (conservative)

At a $500/mo ad budget targeting Cape Coral + Fort Myers, with a tuned landing page:

Ad spend	$500 / mo
Avg CPC (color cluster)	$5.50
Estimated clicks	~90
Booking conversion (tuned LP)	8–12%
Net-new bookings	7–11 / mo
Avg ticket (color/balayage)	$120
Gross new revenue	$840 – $1,320 / mo
Estimated lifetime value lift	$3,000 – $6,000 / yr

Translation: every $1 of ad spend conservatively returns $1.70–$2.60 in first-visit revenue — and color clients return 5–8×/year, so the real return is $6–$12 for every $1 spent over 12 months.

How we keep your ad spend lean

Most local salons quietly waste 30–50% of their Google Ads budget on the wrong clicks. The plan isn't to spend more — it's to make every dollar land on a ready-to-book Cape Coral client. Here's exactly how we cut the waste:

- ✓ Negative keyword list from day one. Block "cheap," "jobs," "salon near me hiring," "how to," "DIY," "school," and the dozens of free-intent searches that burn budget. This alone typically recovers 20–30% of spend.
- ✓ Tight geo radius, not the whole metro. Target a focused radius around the salon (and bid up for the neighborhoods your best clients drive from) instead of paying for clicks from Naples or Punta Gorda who'll never make the trip.
- ✓ Exact & phrase match over broad. Broad match hands Google a blank check. We start tight on high-intent terms ("balayage cape coral") and only widen once we see what actually converts.
- ✓ Dayparting + ad scheduling. Run ads when the salon can actually answer and book — concentrate budget on business hours and peak booking windows, pause overnight dead spend.
- ✓ Quality Score discipline. A tuned, fast, on-message landing page (the one we're building) lowers your cost-per-click for the same position — Google literally charges you less when the page matches the search.
- ✓ Conversion tracking on real bookings. We measure booked appointments, not clicks, so budget shifts automatically toward the keywords that fill chairs and away from the ones that just spend.
- ✓ Google Local Services Ads where they fit. For some salon searches, pay-per-lead LSAs (and the free Google Business Profile) capture high-intent traffic at a lower effective cost than standard search ads.
- ✓ Brand terms protected cheaply. A tiny branded campaign keeps competitors from bidding on "the hair color experts" — pennies per click, defends bookings you've already earned.

Net effect: the same $500 does the work of $700–$900 of untuned spend — and you can start smaller (even $300/mo) and scale only what's proven to convert.

Suggested 90-Day Plan

Phase	Window	Deliverables
1 • Foundation	Days 1– 21	New website (modern stack, mobile-first), Google Business Profile fully optimized, review-request automation live, embedded booking widget.
2 • Capture	Days 22– 45	AI booking assistant (SMS + web chat), service-specific landing pages, Instagram embed, lead magnet for SMS list.
3 • Engine	Days 46– 75	Google Ads campaign launched (managed, lean setup), no-show recovery, color-refresh reminders, lapsed-client win-back sequence.
4 • Optimize	Days 76– 90	First performance review, double down on what's converting, kill what's not, monthly content calendar set.

What I'd need from you

- Access to your current Wix login (or just permission to point your domain to a new host).
- Admin access to your Google Business Profile + the Google account that owns it.
- ~30 minutes total of your stylists' time for headshots / a few before-after photos.
- Your current pricing in a doc or even a phone photo — I'll handle the rest.
- One ~45-min kickoff call to align on brand voice, must-keep elements, and goals.

Why Me, Specifically

I work the way a stylist works: directly with the owner, no agency layers, no junior account manager you've never met. When you text me at 9pm because the booking widget hiccupped, I'm the one who fixes it.

I build websites, ship AI automations, and run paid search end-to-end — so nothing gets lost between three separate vendors blaming each other. And because I run the whole stack, I can iterate fast: a new landing page in 48 hours, a new automation live in a week.

Questions worth asking any vendor

- Who actually owns the site, the domain, and the analytics? (Answer should be: you do.)
- What happens if I cancel? (Answer: you keep the site, the content, the data — no hostage situations.)
- Will you give me admin access to my own Google Ads account? (Answer: yes, day one.)
- How fast can you ship a change I request? (My answer: most edits within 48 hours.)
- Will you teach my team how this works? (My answer: yes — I'd rather make myself replaceable than make you dependent.)

Next step: I've also prepared a full proposal with three retainer options ($500 / $1,200 / $2,000 per month) and a working demo of your new homepage — it's live now at deegan4.github.io/thehaircolorexports. Let's grab 30 minutes and walk through it together. I'll come to the salon if that's easier.
